

Sales Manager – Engineering Design Services.

This independent engineering and consultancy company offer a complete range of services to the chemical, pharmaceutical, oil, gas and manufacturing industries.

With a long-standing and qualified team of staff they offer design, process design, safety consultancy and project management capability.

An opportunity now exists for a relationship builder with substantial experience of generating sales leads within a technical environment.

The role would suit someone who has held a senior level production or mechanical or chemical engineering role and then moved into sales.

This is a UK wide role with some international travel.

If you are interested in this opportunity and would like to know more, please apply via our website or send your CV and covering letter to candidates@executive-headhunters.co.uk